Voyager Jet Center is FBO of Choice for FlexJet
-- New Arrangement is One of Several Developments Taking Place at VJC --

PITTSBURGH, October 8, 2007 – Pittsburgh-based Voyager Jet Center, the leader in private aviation services, has been selected as the preferred fixed base operator (FBO) by Bombardier FlexJet, a fractional business jet program. With the new alliance, private air travelers flying in and out of Pittsburgh can take off on a flight that is most convenient with their schedule and best fits their private air travel needs. From corporate meetings to family vacations, private air travelers can utilize “air time” and take the first plane headed to their desired destination.

“We are pleased to offer private air travelers with yet another service, one that meets their needs and is conveniently accessible,” stated Richard Ryan, president of Voyager Jet Center. “Our new arrangement allows travelers the flexibility to travel when and where necessary at a moment’s notice. This is just one of the many services we provide private air travelers and our upcoming expansion projects will allow for additional unique offerings that are sure to please pilots, owners, and private air travelers.”

Voyager Jet Center continues to move forward with expansion plans at Allegheny County Airport that will accommodate the increase of passengers traveling into and out of the region for business and pleasure. Voyager Jet Center, along with city officials and dignitaries, will participate in a ground breaking ceremony that will provide an expansion project overview and update on the new FBO.

The first phase of the expansion project was completed early this year. Subsequent expansion phases will include additional hangars, a consolidated airfield equipment storage facility, and a maintenance facility.

“We continue with our expansion project at Allegheny County Airport to provide our customers with a top-rate FBO experience,” noted Michael Dolan, vice president, Voyager Jet Center. “Throughout the project, we remain committed to our customers needs and continue to provide them with the high quality service they expect and the most modern equipment and FBO offerings available.”
