Voyager Jet Center Adds Beechjet 400A to its Fleet and Charter Operation

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2 2004 - Voyager Jet Center, the leading Pittsburgh-based aircraft management firm operating from Allegheny County Airport, today announced the addition of a Beechjet 400A to its fleet.

"This acquisition adds an excellent new option to our growing fleet of high-quality, professional charter aircraft," said Richard M. Ryan, president of Voyager Jet Center. "It is a strong complement to our fleet of eight aircraft, including a Gulfstream III, five Hawkers and a King Air 100."

The Beechjet 400A provides an excellent combination of features and performance in a light jet. It has accommodations for up to 8 passengers, a separate lavatory and good range. The Beechjet 400A boasts a range of nearly 1,500 miles and cruises at 514 mph. This nearly new aircraft was purchased direct from the manufacturer and has new paint and interior in the latest configuration.

The aircraft will be operated by Voyager Jet Center on FAA 135 certificate number N9WA809H, and is equipped with the latest safety devices, including RVSM to maintain in-air flight distances, TCAS II for collision avoidance and the EGPWS ground warning system.

"With this purchase, we continue to expand our regional presence from Allegheny County airport, and in conjunction with our affiliate Atlantic Aviation Flight Serves, based in Teterboro, NJ, we can provide aircraft charter and services to the entire east coast," Ryan said. "Our owned network provides us with aircraft based from Florida to Massachusetts, enabling us to provide efficient, timely and safe travel options to our clients."
